Harpo's estimate for your points in the special exercises:

- Nothing yet for availability
- Nothing yet for contributions
- 0 for news tweets
- Nothing yet for survey
- 0 for essays

These are the points that Harpo has computed automatically. When checking for your results of Exam 3, if not earlier, the teacher will also check the validity of these points. It is possible that the above estimate is too high, if you have have categorized a tweet (esp. a required one) incorrectly or tweeted something irrelevant, or if a survey form is incomplete or irrelevant. You are likely to know these matters yourself, and most likely remarks from the teacher come fairly soon after discrepancies. With this disclaimer your total score from Harpo is 0.00

Your learning parameters and notes

date	grade goal	month goal	weekly hours	notes or comments (at least 20 letters)
22.5.	5	Jun	21	This course showed a big mess to me in previous implementations. I am still quite confused about the course design. But now I have to and I am willing to face the challenges and overcome this. Fight for my last grade 5!!

Submit

= days between email reminders.

Changeable to 0..30, where 0 is for no reminders.

Also: submit -1 as a request to the teacher to remove you from Harpo.

Submit to insert new notes or study parameters. The first set of parameters and notes you submit during a session will be saved as a new row in the database, and replaced if a new set is submitted during the same session. Repeated values are hidden. (You cannot use any markup for notes but spaces and linebreaks will work.)

- Grade goal: This is not a commitment but good to have in mind. Possible changes in this may be instructive for yourself to see. Choose 0, if you just wish to have some practice or gain some general information without passing the course.
- Month goal: When do you intend to complete the course?
- Weekly hours: How many hours per week on average do you intend to use on this course in near future?
- Notes & comments: Write general remarks, diary entries, reminders entirely for yourself on your past or future studies on this course. What benefits your learning depends completely on yourself, but you could write for instance, which topics have been or currently seem most interesting, where you spent most of your time, or which topics will need most of your attention next. Remember that Contributions at Maso can also serve as a learning diary, but as their name says, they should benefit other learners as well. The self-evaluation at Maso has a different purpose - a summary of your learning before entering Exam 1, shared with others.

Privacy. Like any learning management system, Harpo collects a lot of data on you, but their connection to your identity will be removed when you exit the course either at your own request or at expiry (cf. Handbook). Many of your inputs (like tweets, survey data, the above parameters) remain in archives or even visible (like tweets and contributions) but they are linked together only with your pseudonym and your database id which is a 4-digit number. Your name, email or student number cannot be linked to them any more.
